1. Adjustment Amount, Adjusted Cost Basis, and Adjusted Gain/(Loss) may not be available for all securities, including (but not limited to): securities purchased prior to 2011; securities purchased elsewhere and later transferred to E*TRADE; and securities whose cost basis may have been adjusted through a merger, spin-off, or other corporate action. Please consult your employer and/or tax advisor for further information regarding treatment of these securities.

2. An Adjustment Amount of $0.00 indicates ordinary income for these shares is already included in the Form 1099-B Cost Basis. Additional cost basis adjustments may apply depending on your personal circumstances (for example, corporate actions, wash sales across accounts, or other tax reporting differences). Please review your records and consult your tax advisor as you complete your tax return.

About This Document

This document is designed to assist you in reviewing information that may be important when reporting your 2025 stock plan transactions on your federal and state income tax returns.

Pursuant to IRS reporting requirements, the cost basis that appears on your Form 1099-B for stock plan shares that are "Covered Securities" does not include any ordinary income amount(s) associated with the shares. As a result, you may need to adjust the cost basis amount to include this ordinary income as you file your tax returns. The ordinary income amount(s), as provided to us by your employer, appear in this document as the Adjustment Amount. Additional adjustments may apply depending on your individual circumstances (for example, corporate actions, wash sales across accounts, or other tax reporting differences). Note: E*TRADE reports cost basis to the IRS for "Covered Securities."

For stock plan shares that are "Noncovered Securities" and were acquired for $0, the cost basis that appears on your Form 1099-B includes the amount you paid to acquire the shares ($0) plus any ordinary income associated with the shares, as provided to us by your employer. Because this ordinary income is already included in the Form 1099-B Cost Basis, the Adjustment Amount is $0.00. This means no additional cost basis adjustment is required solely for the ordinary income provided to us by your employer. Other adjustments may apply depending on your individual circumstances (for example, corporate actions, wash sales across accounts, or other tax reporting differences). Note: E*TRADE does not report cost basis to the IRS for "Noncovered Securities."

It is your responsibility to validate these amounts against the Form W-2 or other documents provided by your employer before you determine to include them in your tax return filing.

This document includes information about transactions relating to your stock plan shares only.

Please consult your tax advisor for further information.

Definitions

Stock Plan Transactions	These are the sale or disposition transactions conducted in your stock plan account during the tax year.
Date Acquired	This is the date you acquired the shares. For restricted stock or performance shares, this is typically either the vest or release date. For shares purchased through an Employee Stock Purchase Plan, this is the purchase date. For shares acquired through exercise of a stock option or stock appreciation right, this is the exercise date. (Note: Dates are formatted as mm/dd/yyyy).
Date Sold	This is the date you sold or otherwise disposed of the shares. (Note: Dates are formatted as mm/dd/yyyy).
Total Proceeds	This is the dollar value of the transaction, after the deduction of any commissions and fees associated with the sale.
Form 1099-B Cost Basis	For stock plan shares that are “Covered Securities,” this is the amount you paid to acquire the shares. For stock plan shares that are “Noncovered Securities” and were acquired for $0, this is the amount you paid to acquire the shares ($0) plus any ordinary income associated with the shares, as provided to us by your employer. Form 1099-B Cost Basis reflects adjustments for commissions and fees, wash sales, dividend reclassifications, and corporate actions. Consult your employer and/or tax advisor for further information regarding cost basis of both “Covered Securities” and “Noncovered Securities.”
Adjustment Amount	For stock plan shares that are "Covered Securities," this is the amount of compensation income associated with the shares, as provided to us by your employer. Rules for recognition of ordinary income vary by benefit type. Consult your employer and/or tax advisor for further information about adjustments related to ordinary income you may be entitled to make as you file your tax returns. For stock plan shares that are "Noncovered Securities" and were acquired for $0, the Adjustment Amount shown in this document is $0.00, because the ordinary income associated with the shares is already included in the Form 1099-B Cost Basis. Other adjustments may apply depending on your individual circumstances (for example, corporate actions, wash sales across accounts, or other tax reporting differences).
Adjusted Cost Basis	This is the sum of your Form 1099-B Cost Basis and any Adjustment Amount. This figure is provided for your convenience only. E*TRADE does not report Adjusted Cost Basis to the IRS. You are responsible for confirming the accuracy of this amount when filing your tax return.
Adjusted Gain/Loss	This value represents your Total Proceeds minus your Adjusted Cost Basis.
Capital Gains Status	This indicates the type of gain or loss for the transaction. Capital gains or losses are generally considered long-term if the shares are held for at least one year and one day before sale and short-term if held for a year or less. Capital gains status is also indicated in Box 2 of Form 1099-B.
Covered/Noncovered	This indicates whether E*TRADE is required to report cost basis to the IRS for these shares. Tax reporting regulations from the IRS require brokers to report cost basis for "Covered Securities" for US taxpayers. Shares that are acquired at no cost—like most restricted stock and performance shares—are considered "Noncovered Securities," and cost basis is not reported to the IRS. Covered/Noncovered status is also indicated in Box 5 of Form 1099-B.
